

PROFESSIONS AUSTRALIA

Media Release

19 June 2017

Professions Australia welcomes action by CPA Australia

The appointment by CPA Australia of a panel to review claims relating to the use of CPA Australia members' funds has been welcomed by the nation's peak professional body.

The President of Professions Australia, Brenda Aynsley OAM, said action to address claims made by some CPA members and criticisms of decisions made by the organisation's Board and executive was an appropriate response.

"It's important for CPA Australia and its members that the review addresses these matters and ensures that both members and the public continue to have confidence in the accounting profession and in all professionals working in any capacity in our community," Ms Aynsley said.

"Professions Australia as the peak body for professional associations works with our members to encourage the highest professional standards by all professionals and continued good governance on the part of organisations working to protect the public."

Media contact: Liz Lang, CEO, Professions Australia on 0400 402 904 or ceo@professions.com.au

Twitter: ProfessionsAustralia@professions1

www.professions.com.au

About Professions Australia

Professions Australia, the Australian Council of Professions Ltd, is the unifying alliance of professional associations. It works with its members to promote the interests and welfare of the Australian community through standards consistent with the public interest and ethical and responsible behaviour which fosters community confidence in the integrity of the professions.