

We the participants of the first national Summit on Best Practices in Higher-Education Course Accreditation:

Recognising that the development of professionals as ethical, innovative, competent, practitioners is key to the workforce of the future and sustainability of our communities,

commit to

Continuing to support collaborative, evidence-based and efficient accreditation processes that facilitate a quality tertiary system as well as mutual recognition of learning and will engage in on-going cross-sector dialogue to advance innovation, diversity and excellence.

Melbourne, 21st February 2018